

How do you make an octopus laugh?
WITH TEN-TICKLES!

PINECONE BIRD FEEDER

Supplies:

- Pinecones
- Peanut Butter
- Bird Seed
- Twine or String
- Paper Plates
- Craft Sticks or Spoons

Directions:

- Place the pinecone on a paper plate, and use a craft stick or spoon to smear peanut butter all over the pinecone.
- Sprinkle bird seed on the pinecone so it sticks to the peanut butter.
- Attach the string or twine to the pinecone.
- Hang outside from a tree or hook and watch for the birds to enjoy the seeds!

DID YOU KNOW?

What did people use before there were alarm clocks or phone alarms to wake up in the morning? There was once a job called a knocker-up or knocker-upper. Knocker-ups would be paid to knock on people's doors or windows to wake them up so they could get to work on time. They would use a long stick or pole to knock on second story windows, which is why they included up in the name. Some knocker-ups would keep knocking until they were sure the person was awake.

RUN FOR THE ZOO

Kirby's eyes popped open, and he jumped out of bed! Today was race day! Kirby is doing a walk/run 5K fundraiser for his zoo. A fundraiser is when a group gathers to raise money to support something they believe in. Kirby is so excited to support the zoo!

Kirby used $35 from his savings account to register for the race. His registration, or fee he paid to enter the race and support the zoo, included a T-shirt to wear to the race today. He also asked his family, friends, and teachers if they would like to donate. Kirby was able to raise $50 more, for a total donation of $85 in support of the zoo. There are over 500 racers today - imagine how much money was raised! Kirby is proud to be part of the donations for the zoo.

The runners gathered at the start of the race. An announcer counted down from five and said go! Some walked and some ran, but everyone completed the race. Kirby jogged most of the way and joined the celebration at the finish line. It was a fun day, and it felt good to Kirby to help the zoo.
